

Hall's Candidacy Endorsed By Hudson

Fred Hudson, Jr. of Center, one of four candidates in the Saturday, June 19, special election to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Wright Patman, has endorsed the candidacy of Sam B. Hall, Jr. of Marshall.

In a statement released Saturday throughout the district, Hudson said, "Sam B. Hall, Jr. is the Democratic nominee for the full term and in all probability will be elected in the November general election. The voter, in my opinion, should weigh carefully the need to fill the vacancy in Congress with Mr. Hall in order that he can secure seniority, obtain favorable committee assignments and assemble a competent staff."

"After all," Hudson continued, "the office of Congressman is not one for self advancement, but one of service. The majority of the people of the district have indicated that Mr. Hall should have that opportunity of service. In my view, the voters would be exercising good judgment for the district by letting him get on with the job as soon as possible."

Hall, a Marshall attorney, won the Democratic Party's nomination in the First Congressional District race by defeating his runoff opponent, Dr. Glen Jones of Jacksonville, by an almost 4,000-vote margin.

Hall, Hudson, Jones and Dr. James Hogan, a Republican, will vie in next Saturday's special election.

Hall, commenting on Hudson's endorsement of his candidacy, said, "I am extremely grateful for this act on his part. I feel that it's very important that we get on with the business of representing the people of the First Congressional District."

"It's rather obvious that the people of the First District have spoken about who they want to represent them. I am hopeful that we will have a large enough voter turnout next Saturday to eliminate the necessity of a runoff election."

"If I am elected to fill Mr. Patman's unexpired term, it could be very important in being able to obtain the committee assignments I need in order to adequately represent the people of the First Congressional District."

Jones was quoted in Saturday's Longview Morning Journal as predicting a runoff election to the June 19 special election.

"There are four people in the race and there should be four splits," Jones commented from his Jacksonville farm Friday. Jones said he would not actively campaign for the race—at least not this week.

"Next week I'll decide what to do then. Right now I'm not campaigning. I've noticed he's (Hall) not doing much either. We're both better off to keep a low profile right now," Jones added.

Jones said an active campaign would cause a "negative reaction" since people were "tired of politics."

Jones called the approaching third election a "rare situation," adding people were confused about its purpose.

Because of this, he expects a small turnout. "This means anything can happen," he added.

"I see no point in pulling out since my name is already on the ballot. People are going to be watching for the result to see how much support each of us has," he said.

Jones denied rumors of seeking the remainder of Patman's term to wage a write-in campaign in November.

"I've never known a write-in campaign to work except on the local level. This thing is so massive and these people are not inclined to do that sort of thing."

"I don't think it would be worthwhile," he repeated.

If a runoff is needed for the special election race, it must be held not less than 30 or more than 45 days following June 19.

If another race is necessary, it will be the fourth election for the candidates to face on the way to the November general ballot.

John Young Denies Allegations

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)—Rep. John Young, D-Tex., appeared at a news conference in his home district Saturday and refused to confirm or deny allegations he paid a staff member for sexual favors. Young said he would not make a statement because it would be a matter before a grand jury. "There are two aspects to this as I see it. There is a question of whether the federal payroll is being padded to satisfy sexual desires of members of Congress. That is a legitimate federal interest, and that is an interest that is being carefully examined by the Department of Justice. And it should be I expect it to be in my case, too. If the Department of Justice doesn't call me this week, I'm going to call the Department of Justice." The second issue, Young said, is the "pocobility" of members of Congress. "This primrose path of dalliance is nothing new. It's gone on as long as there have been men and women."

Jury To Return Suit Verdict

HOUSTON (AP)—A jury was to return to court Monday to begin its third day of deliberations in the trial of a lawsuit in which two Houston businessmen claim Texas Supreme Court nominee Donald B. Yarbrough defrauded them. The jury failed to reach a verdict Friday and State District Court Judge William N. Blanton Jr. recessed court until Monday. The 11-member panel received the case late Wednesday and failed to reach a verdict during all-day deliberations Thursday and Friday. One juror was excused earlier because of illness. In the suit, Rex L. Cooper and Douglas Ford contend Yarbrough defrauded them of $117,500 in a 1974 bank purchase deal.

Board Passes Fee Guidelines

AUSTIN (AP)—The State Board of Education passed Saturday, with considerable criticism, a set of guidelines for Texas schools to use in collecting fees from pupils. "Although it is not what everybody would like to have, it is the best we can do under the conditions," said board member Dr. Stanley B. McCalib, Richardson. "Our actions are in response to an attorney general's opinion, and we expect the legislature to do something about it in January." said Austin member Jane Wells. A request from W. H. Fetter, LaMarque, absent because of a heart attack, to put off the third and final vote until July was not accepted. The set of guidelines is the board's much-discussed answer to Atty. Gen. John Hill's opinion last October that knocked out most fees charged at Texas schools because they had not been authorized by the legislature. The board estimated Texas' school districts lost about $22 million income from non-collection of fees.

Officials To Ponder Land Issue

County Will Also Consider New Judge At Law

By ROB LINEBACK
News Messenger Writer

A status report on the re-establishment of Harrison County Permanent School Fund land boundaries and appointment of a special county judge at law will be among the items taken up during the regular commissioner's court meeting Monday.

Members on the court will go into executive session to discuss the progress on the West Texas school fund land question.

Earlier this month, District Attorney Sam Baxter and Richard Anderson, attorneys acting for the county, made a fact-finding trip to the land, located near Ballinger, in Runnels County.

Dist. Atty. Baxter told the News Messenger after returning from the trip that the land appeared to be worth more than a $77 per acre bid given to the county in January.

A question over fence lines arose during a February commissioner's meeting when Baxter told the court that he had received information the boundary lines had been moved by ranchers sometime near the turn of the century.

Commissioners were scheduled to approve a $175,000 bid for the 2,260 acres of land at the February meeting.

County commissioners are also scheduled to consider the appointment of Marshall attorney Joe Hughey as special county judge at law to fill a vacancy.

The vacancy was created after County Judge Don Stokes received a back injury early in May from an unknown cause.

A spokeswoman at Stokes' office said a recent doctor's report indicated that the county judge would not be able to return for several weeks.

According to Precinct 2 County Commissioner Will Power, who signed the June meeting's agenda in place of Judge Stokes, Hughey will only fill the judge at law position until Stokes is able to return.

Since Stokes is unable to preside over Monday's meeting, Power said it would be up to the court to select a commissioner to head the meeting.

Commissioners will act on appointment of election judges, election clerks and designation of use of voting machines for the Special June 19 Congressional election.

They will also consider salaries for both judges and clerks and set hours that the polls will be open on June 19.

A discussion over the visiting space for attorneys and their clients in the Harrison County Jail is listed on the agenda.

Earlier in the year, commissioners heard several Marshall defense lawyers complain of the conditions and facilities available to attorneys and their clients in the county jail.

One attorney told commissioners that they were being placed inside "bugged" rooms during private meetings, and it was "illegal" to have a bugged room for lawyers and clients.

The court will look at its entire 1976 Farm-to-Market Road program during the June meeting in the Commissioner's Courtroom, according to the agenda.

Motive Of Hays Remains Mystery

BARNESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Rep. Wayne Hays' doctor said Saturday he doesn't know whether the embattled 65-year-old Democrat tried to commit suicide when he took an overdose of sleeping pills, and the congressman's press secretary, Carol Clawson, made it clear she isn't going to ask him.

After conferring with Mrs. Clawson, Dr. Richard Phillips told reporters that he shouldn't have said earlier that Hays might have taken 10 times the normal dosage of Dalmane.

"I wandered from the facts and began to speculate last night when I was tired," Phillips said. "I had no right to do that. All I can really tell you is that it's somewhere over the normal dose."

Phillips said Hays looked fine and was alert when the doctor talked to him for five minutes Saturday morning. But Phillips said Hays didn't bring up the matter of whether he knowingly took the overdose.

"I'm not going to talk to him about it until he wants to talk about it," the doctor said. "When he does want to talk about it, it's going to fall into the realm of doctor-patient relationship, and I don't plan to make any statement on that at all."

Mrs. Clawson said she would follow the doctor's example. "In other words," she said, "I'm not going to go into him this morning and say, 'Well, boss, how many pills did you take?' I'm not going to do it tomorrow morning, Monday morning or Tuesday morning."

Hays took the pills Wednesday night after returning from Washington, where the Justice Department and the House Ethics Committee are investigating a woman's allegations Hays put her on the federal payroll at $14,000 a year to serve as his mistress.

Hays has admitted having a relationship with the woman, former model Elizabeth Ray, 33, but has denied the claim she did no office work to earn her pay.

Mrs. Clawson said Hays has not been subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury making the inquiry.

Phillips said he prescribed the Dalmane about 2 1/2 weeks ago to help Hays withstand the pressure of the scandal that had engulfed his 28-year House career and his marriage of two months to his wife, Pat, 35.

Phillips' last medical report said Hays was "sleepy and weak but totally oriented." The doctor said it now was a matter of Hays' regaining his strength and that no more medical problems were expected.

Now A Coed

Colleen Gardner holds a textbook as she relaxes in her mother's Arlington, Va., home Friday night. Gardner, a student at American University in Washington, has accused Rep. John Young, D-Tex., of paying her $28,000 a year in return for sex.

Panel Approves Platform Plank

Party Subcommittee Takes Bead On Unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP)—A program intended to reduce adult unemployment to 3 per cent in four years was approved Saturday by the Democratic party's 1976 platform drafting subcommittee.

The panel said the party should back legislation to make "every reasonable effort" to slash the adult unemployment rate, which was 6.2 per cent in May.

Among measures, it said, would be an antirecession program to create government jobs when necessary, although it made clear it prefers creating jobs in the private sector first.

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter told the subcommittee the Democratic platform must set realistic and affordable goals and "should not mislead the American people."

"I believe you have an obligation to write a platform that will be a binding contract with the American people," Carter said in a 37-page statement he sent to the subcommittee.

The subcommittee approved wording Saturday for the party's 1976 platform on the economy, unemployment, government reform and business accountability. Other major issues remaining to be taken up included the party's position on busing to achieve racial integration of schools.

The subcommittee is supposed to have a final platform draft ready for the full party platform committee that meets for three days beginning Monday. Once the draft passes that hurdle, it will go to the Democratic National Convention for final approval as the party's official policy statement for the fall election campaign.

A spokesman for Carter, Stuart Eizenstat, told newsmen the former Georgia governor is not trying to dictate the content of the platform, but he added that so far "we are in general agreement with most of the platform."

The economy section is similar to provisions of the Humphrey-Hawkins employment bill now before Congress, although specific endorsement of the legislation was not included.

Key provisions of the economy section, which reportedly was approved with little dissent, if any, include:

—Support of legislation to achieve 3 per cent adult unemployment within four years.

—Establishment of a national economic planning capability to set annual targets for employment, production and price stability, as well as longer-term planning.

—Making the Federal Reserve System a "full partner" in national economic decisions, responsive to the economic goals of Congress and the president.

Reagan Wins In Missouri

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Ronald Reagan won a Missouri showdown with President Ford on Saturday, winning all but one of the state's 19 at-large delegates to the Republican National Convention.

President Ford, who along with the former California governor personally appealed for support during appearances a day earlier, collected only one delegate.

The results from the state convention, coupled with delegate selection last month in the state's 10 congressional districts, left Missouri's 40-member delegation split this way: 30 for Reagan, 14 for Ford and three uncommitted.

The 19 remaining at-large delegates selected Saturday were crucial to the campaigns of both candidates. Fewer than 100 national delegates separate the two, and 200 remain to be chosen before the national GOP convention.

Bob Lane : From Playing Field To Principal's Office

By MABEL LEWIS
News Messenger Writer

The position of principal in any high school is probably one of the most thankless jobs around. Not the kind of job you can go home and forget about, a principal's spot is definitely not a nine to five job. But the rewards of having a large amount of influence in the lives of students are no doubt great, and Bob Lane is ready to accept the challenge.

The new Marshall High School principal, appointed to the post this month following the resignation of Jackie Cannon, is "going over the groundwork" of his new position in upcoming weeks with his predecessor. "I want to find out what the needs are," he said during an interview shortly after his appointment. "A principal must be adaptable."

He comes to the Marshall High post after a year as principal at Marshall Junior High School and earlier years as assistant principal at Pemberton High School. Prior to those jobs, he coached winning basketball teams at MHS, beginning in 1968.

Lane enjoyed those years "tremendously," and finds some similarity in coaching and administration, although he feels coaches are "under a different kind of pressure."

"Coaching is a demand on a man's time and abilities," Lane reflects, "but a coach's interest is primarily with his team."

"A principal," he notes, "has the sometimes difficult job of acting as a buffer between parents and teachers or students and teachers. You have to make some hard decisions."

Lane has, of course, played all the above roles himself. The parent of four children, he was a basketball-playing student at West Ark Junior College. He and his wife Sally are the parents of Bobby, 17, and a senior next year at MHS; Melissa, 15; Pam, 13; and Amanda, 14 months. They are members of Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

He received his bachelor's degree at Arkansas State Teachers College and his master's degree from the University of Arkansas.

Before coming to Marshall, he taught and coached at Derby Junior High School and Northside High School in Fort Smith, Ark., his hometown.

During his teaching and coaching career, Lane has noticed a slight change in students.

"They seem to be a little more restless," he explains, "maybe not as sure of themselves or what they want to do."

Those changes, he says, make his job just that much more challenging. "There are some outside influences on youth," Lane adds, "that we teachers and administrators have little control over."

Marshall High's new principal sees his new task as a quest to provide students with "a chance to improve themselves."

"School gives students the opportunity to learn how to get along with others," Lane says, "along with the necessary knowledge and skills to help them later."

He is in favor of extra-curricular activities, such as sports, choir, or "anything that gives students the chance to take part."

Lane also favors the proposed new high school—"badly needed for some time" and a vocational school—"we need to provide more offerings in other levels."

The man who will be over some 1,600 students next term considers himself a "fairly strong disciplinarian."

"You have to keep discipline," he says, "along with a rapport with the students."

Editorials/Commentary

Let's Not Be Premature On Victory

Our heartfelt congratulations to Sam B. Hall, Jr. for his runoff election victory in the First Congressional District race.

But, let's not be premature. The race is not over. Not by a long shot. He hasn't won the race, he's only gained the Democratic Party's pole position.

In fact, to adopt the attitude that he has the race all but sewn up could be tantamount to political ruin.

Let's not forget that there's another First Congressional District race right around the corner—next Saturday, to be exact. It is just as important, or perhaps more important than the primary, and runoff elections we've already seen this spring.

Why is it so important? In Hall's case, if he is chosen in the special election to fill the remainder of the late Wright Patman's term until January 1, it could mean a world of difference in the congressional seniority picture.

By best estimates, there's some 100 congressional seats to be filled in the November general election. If Hall is named to fill the remainder of Mr. Patman's term, he'll have some six months seniority over the other 99 or so congressmen. And in Washington circles, seniority is the name of the game.

Seniority is the key to obtaining assignments on the committees that can best serve the interests of the congressman's constituents back home. It's hoped that the voters of the First Congressional District will see fit to give Hall the same vote of confidence in the special election that they did in last Saturday's runoff election. There are a lot of important First Congressional District projects which have had to lay idle on the late congressman's desk until his successor could be named.

It would be folly to elect anyone other than Hall who would serve a little more than six months before having to abandon the office.

Let's elect a man who'll be able to provide us the continuity we need.

We urge you to go to the polls on Saturday, June 19, and vote for Sam B. Hall, Jr.

Albert's Graceful Departure

Speaker Carl Albert's announced decision to retire from Congress is particularly memorable for two reasons. One is that his departure assumes a leadership change in the House as well as in the Senate, where Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and minority Leader Hugh Scott are stepping down. The second is that Albert's leaving sets down a graceful departure from long-held office.

Albert is not an old man. At 68, he is more than a decade younger than some in the House and Senate. But while many another has hung on long past his time of maximum usefulness, Albert is voluntarily retiring with the word that as he nears 70 in good health "there are other things I want to do."

We do not advocate 70 as a mandatory retirement age. We do say that Albert's example might well be emulated by others as they become conscious of the inevitable decline of their energies and capacity for service.

Comparatively, It's Down

Parents may take comfort, though, of the variety known as cold, in word that while the dollar cost of higher education is going up, the cost in terms of family income is less than it used to be. One factor in this is that government subsidies now defray more of the cost per student than some decades ago.

A report by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching tells us that as compared with 1929-30 "the net cost of higher education per student to the family—for subsistence and tuition—has actually gone down in constant dollars by about nine per cent."

Tuition and all the rest of it is still an awful wallow to the family budget. But it may help a little to know that at one time it was worse.

Getting T-Shirts Off His Chest

Without A Paddle

By JOHN W. MOODY
News Messenger City Editor

I don't know how long men have been wearing t-shirts. But I'm afraid the custom is on its way out. No, I don't think it's because general public attitudes are becoming more and more liberal.

But I am beginning to suspect that someone in the T-shirt industry is out to get us all. It's a difficult conclusion to consider because, like everyone else, I find it hard to think about T-shirts at all. Given a choice, I would just as soon think about eggs, telephone poles, empty Bull Durham cans.

Lately, however, it has become hard not to notice T-shirts.

Every time you look, someone is wearing a different T-shirt reminding you of that some kind of beverage or telling you that the wearer attended Willie's picnic or the Knoxville Folk Festival.

Other T-shirts either urge the public to vote a straight party ticket or promote a private club.

And you may have noticed that since March is now an All America city, there is a move on to provide citizens with All America T-shirts.

About the only kind of T-shirt you don't see any more is the variety of ruffles, the plain white job with no markings or illustrations.

Sometime later, some manufacturing genius is going to come up with that concept.

I have nothing against T-shirts, except that I personally look like some kind of Charles Atlas reject in one.

But I am beginning to wonder how this whole T-shirt craze started.

At one time, a T-shirt was a useful garment which usually doubled as underwear or pajama top.

That was before the boom.

At first, they started appearing on college campuses, generally in school colors. Then the expansion movement began.

I suspect the advertising world had a hand in it. Particularly those agencies which represent breweries.

For a while, you couldn't turn on a television set without seeing someone trained lawyer, accustomed to debate in the House of Burgesses just down the street. "Have a free government and the blessings of liberty be preserved!"

These are, to be sure, the very questions one expects to encounter at 3 o'clock of a foggy morning on Duke of Gloucester Street. Our visitor, gathering his wits, carried the question with a question of his own. "Do I have the honor, sir, of addressing the late George Mason?"

"At your service," replied the amiable shade, rising from the steps and bowing slightly through the railing. "I return now and then to see what has become of my Virginia Declaration of Rights. You will recall that the Declaration was adopted by the House just 200 years ago this week. Tell me, sir, if you will, do the Americans of 1976 frequently recur to fundamental principles?"

The spectral figure paused to reflect. Only that afternoon he had read the Declaration of Rights, a copy of which he had found on his bureau at the Inn. He recalled some of the famous sixteen assertions: That men have a right to the enjoyment of life and liberty, with the means of acquiring and possessing property; that public officials are the trustees and the servants of the people; that the three branches of government must be kept separate from each other; that the rights of a citizen must be secured; that freedom of religion and of the press are indispensable to a free society; that men should not hold too long to public office lest they forget the burdens of the people.

Then he recalled that in the fifteenth assertion, Mason had declared that "no free government, or the rights of a citizen, can be preserved to any people but by a firm adherence to justice, moderation, temperance, frugality, and virtue; and by frequent recurrence to fundamental principles."

Our visitor peered through the mist. The portly gentleman was waiting impatiently for an answer. "Our visitor replied at last. 'Our press is still free. You don't hear much about religion anymore. The rights of a defendant have been made so easy that the rights of society tend to get overlooked. Many of our legislators seem to want to stay in office forever, and the principle that public officials are trustees and servants appears to be almost lost. The legislative and executive branches are too intertwined to untangle, and judges are making most of the law that matters."

The spectral figure sighed. "What of frugality?" asked Mason.

"It was last seen in Washington forty-four years ago," our visitor said. "And as for virtue..."

The conversation ended there, for the gentleman dissolved in the mist. Our visitor, his composure even more unsettled by this odd encounter, walked slowly back to the Inn. The distant dog was still barking faintly—or was it a dog?

It may have been the voice of a vanished Virginian, crying for principles too precious ever to be lost. Recur! Recur! Recur!

Police Investigate Thefts, Burglary

Marshall police detectives are investigating four thefts and a burglary reported here Friday and Saturday, according to the activity sheet.

Reports said a neighbor reported that the residence of Roy Branson, 291 Mannes, was burglarized about 11:30 p.m. Saturday through a screen window before entering the house.

The incident was reported at 11:41 a.m. Saturday, reports said, and an undetermined amount of property was taken from the home Saturday.

The matter is still under investigation by city detectives, reports said.

Police are also looking for a $400 boat, which was reported stolen from Jerry Morris, 62

Donna Vista. Reports said the boat was first discovered missing several days ago, but was not reported to police until 11:01 a.m. Saturday.

Dr. H. O. Padgett, 264 University Ave., reported to Marshall police that his medical bag was taken from his car sometime during Thursday.

Reports said Dr. Padgett told police that the medical bag was taken either while the car was parked at his office or in the Marshall Memorial Hospital parking lot.

No value was listed on the loss, according to reports, but the bag contained several medical tools. The theft was reported at 10:22 a.m. Friday, according to the police activity sheet.

At 9:52 a.m. Saturday, W. L. Thomas, 807 E. Houston St., reported that someone stole tools and a tool tray from his garage sometime during Friday.

No value was placed on the missing property, reports indicated. Police are investigating the theft of a black bicycle from Betty McDowell, 2508 Morton St., reports said.

Reports said the bicycle, $90, was taken from Mrs. Mc-

Dowell's front porch sometime during Thursday.

Two 18-year-old Marshall girls were injured and taken to Memorial Hospital for treatment after two separate traffic accidents here Friday and Saturday, reports said.

At 12:08 p.m., police received a major two-car accident report at the intersection of West Grand Avenue and North Grove Street, in which Venita Stanford, 15, and her mother, Mrs. Dixie Moore Stanford, both Rt. 3 of Marshall, were injured.

Reports indicated that Venita was taken to the Marshall Memorial Hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

Involved in the collision were a 1973 Ford driven by Mrs. Stanford and a 1976 Ford operated by Walter Frances Fugler, 104 May Dr., reports said.

Both vehicles sustained major property damage in the crash. Another major accident was reported at 7:19 p.m. Friday in the 1300 block of Melanah Street, which involved three cars, and listed four minor injuries.

Reports said Debra Davis, 15, 1206 Johnson St., was taken to Marshall Memorial Hospital by ambulance for treatment of minor injuries.

Also injured in the crash was Vicky Davis, 11, Tanya Davis, 11, and Mrs. Yvonne Green Davis, all of 1203 Johnson St., reports said.

All of those left the scene of the accident by private vehicle, reports indicated.

Involved in the three-car crash were a 1971 property parked Chevrolet operated by Mrs. Davis, a 1970 Oldsmobile driven by Kearney James, Rt. 2 of Marshall and a property parked 1963 Chevrolet owned by Emory McCowan, 600 Weaver.

Reports said the 1971 Chevrolet received moderate damage, while the others sustained minor damage in the crash.

Reports indicated that police investigated a total of six minor traffic accidents; none listing any injuries or substantial property loss.

Dickson will run in November's general election. The unopposed candidate was selected from eight persons seeking the post, currently held by Beulah Moody.

Mrs. Moody was appointed commissioner earlier in June to fill the vacancy left by the May 31 death of her preaching, and specialty acts all sponsored by the Jefferson Memorial Alliance.

Floata may be sponsored by organizations, groups or individuals. Marion County Chamber of Commerce officials say the groups may sponsor as many floats as they can find children for.

The floats are to be child, horse, dog or goat-powered—or any other mode of power other than the motor.

Individual entries may include children in costume on decorated bicycles, with pets in costume, on horseback, or on foot with flags.

Subcommittee To Call For Consolidation

News Messenger Austin Service

AUSTIN—The Little Hoover Commission's Subcommittee on Natural Resources is preparing recommendations that the state's three water agencies be streamlined into two agencies.

The proposal would do away with the current system of water boards—composed of the Water Quality Board, Water Development Board and the Water Rights Commission—and create one agency to deal with planning and development and another that would concentrate on regulations and permits.

Subcommittee chairman Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene says the subcommittee will present its recommendations to another subcommittee on June 22 and later to the entire committee. The recommendation, Jones explains, is not being made "simply because we feel we have to make some kind of recommendation." "It's the feeling of this subcommittee that there's some overlapping and duplication of function in the three agencies," Jones says, and adds that making two agencies from the current three can eliminate inefficiencies without destroying the important "checks and balances" between the boards.

The proposal has been in the works for several years, Jones says, and a recommendation to consolidate the water agencies came up very early in the subcommittee's deliberations.

Jones says he expects opposition from some of the agencies' officials, explaining "there's a natural tendency to retain the status quo." But he says that a consolidation program the subcommittee is proposing holds a potential for "significant improvement" of the present water regulatory system.

Endangered Species
Laws Are Tougher

As spectacular as skiing may appear, it is one of the easiest sports to learn. Many novice water skiers, especially children, can easily master the fundamentals within an hour.

If you've never been up on a pair of skis before, it's a good idea to take lessons from an instructor or an experienced skier to learn the correct and safe methods. This is important, because bad habits once learned are difficult to correct.

Before you hit the water, you'll probably spend time on the beach learning about equipment, techniques of your ski blades, how to hold the towline, how to get up and how to stay up. It may take a number of attempts to get up and moving on skis, but once done, it's relatively easy to remain standing while gliding over the water. Points to remember which will add to your ease and enjoyment are:

1. Try to relax. Holding the towline too tightly and becoming tense are bad habits. Handle-grip tension has a way of transmitting itself to your legs, back and thigh muscles. A relaxed skier learns faster and takes fewer spills.

2. Fight off that fall. At least half the falls a beginning skier takes needn't happen at all. Too often, a skier feels that a fall is inevitable and simply resigns himself to a dunking.

3. If you must fall, don't fall forward. Lean to the side or back. If you release the towline, in this way, you will fall in the direction of the lean. As you fall, cover your face with your forearm to cushion the impact and protect your face. Don't attempt to dive.

4. When you have recovered from a fall, give a signal by clapping your hands over your head to tell your boat operator or observer that you are all right. From that time until you are picked up in the boat or are skiing again, keep a ski lifted vertically out of the water to make it easy for you to be seen by your own boat and others.

Portion Of Salmon Return
From Uncertain Futures

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — In April 1975, 16,000 coho salmon the size of your finger slipped down a spillway at Oregon Aqua Foods to uncertain futures in the Pacific Ocean.

They were seedlings, so to speak, in a fish-farming operation, a form of farming that is gaining popularity in the United States.

Most of these seedlings were never seen again. Some died of starvation and disease, got some. So did bigger fish and fishermen.

But that November, 160 salmon from the experimental release returned to the spillway as immature but harvestable fish, driven by a mysterious force that brings salmon and a few other species back to spawn where they were raised.

A one per cent return. But Jack Donaldson, a former fisheries professor who ran the sea-ranching operation until recently, was encouraged.

"They were all males," he said of the returns. "We call them 'jacks' or 'precocious' because they return ahead of schedule to spawn."

Next November, he estimates, another four or five per cent of the coho will be back as mature, marketable 16-pound fish.

He spoke of releases of up to 40 million salmon a year, within 10 years. He said Oregon Aqua Foods and similar commercial operations could reestablish the salmon run that have been all but wiped out by hydroelectric dams, pollution, and other man-made factors.

The practice of fish-farming is more than 2,000 years old in Asia, where populations are dense and farmland critically short. Only in the past decade has it expanded to any extent in the United States, where it is called aquaculture, mariculture, sea-ranching or fish-farming.

While a constant protein shortage has been a factor in aquaculture expansion abroad, the domestic focus so far has been on filling an increasing demand for diminishing supplies of luxury items, such as shrimp and salmon.

U.S. fish and shellfish production now is 70,000 tons or more annually out of a worldwide total of seven million tons. The Japanese are the leaders in aquaculture with 500,000 tons.

Besides shrimp and salmon, 16,000 commercial catfish farms dot the South. They'll produce 50,000 tons of fish on 75,000 acres of landlocked ponds this year. In 1960, about 150 tons of catfish were raised on 100 acres.

In fields that have been diked and flooded, catfish growers have raised up to 10 tons of fish.

Four State Bass Tournament Stated

The 1976 second quarter Four States area Bass Club tournament will be held June 26 on Wright Patman Reservoir.

The event is sponsored by the Atlanta Bass Club and the entry fee is $5 per club member.

Competition will be between area Bass Clubs. The total weight of the best three team strings from each club will determine the area's best bass club.

All entry money will be divided among the top three team strings and to the largest bass caught, regardless of club affiliation.

Austin — A farmer who shot an ocelot eating his $15 goat faces charges that could amount to a $500 fine.

The ocelot, a member of the feline family, is an endangered species and protected by both federal and state laws.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service are required by law to prosecute anyone in violation of the Endangered Species Act, said George C. Adams with the environmental branch of the P&WD.

In the case of the ocelot, the federal government is doing the investigation and prosecution. The endangered species list for Texas is:

MAMMALS—Blue whale, finback whale, right whale, sperm whale, black-footed ferret, jaguar, margay, ocelot, red wolf, West Indian manatee and bighorn sheep.

BIRDS—Brown pelican, Mexican duck, southern bald eagle, American peregrine falcon, Arctic peregrine falcon, Altavilla greater prairie chicken, whooping crane.

REPTILES—Atlantic ridley turtle, hawksbill turtle, leatherback turtle and American alligator.

AMPHIBIANS—Cascade Canyon salamander, San Marcos salamander, Fern Bank salamander, Texas blind salamander and Houston toad.

FISH—Big Bend gambusia, Clear Creek gambusia, Pecos gambusia, Amistad gambusia, San Marcos gambusia, Comanche Springs pupfish, Leon Springs pupfish and fountain darter.

No person may take, possess, or transport endangered species for any purpose, unless they have a valid permit from the P&WD and the federal government.

These permits are issued under controlled circumstances for specific research purposes. The penalty for violating any portion of the Texas Endangered Species Act is a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $200 for the first offense; a fine not less than $200 nor more than $500, confinement in the county jail for not less than 30 days.

Biologists in Maine, Massachusetts and California are experimenting with warm-water rearing ponds for lobsters. They are using water from power plants to boost the growth rate of lobsters and to cut in half the five to seven years it takes nature to make one lobster market-ready. At present there is no commercial lobster aquaculture.

Purina and Ralston have experimental shrimp farms in Latin America and Marifarm, Inc., has the largest shrimp farm in the world—3,100 acres in Panama City, Fla. There also are a number of small commercial shrimp farms in Spain where they were raised.

Frost and Sullivan, a New York business research firm, did an exhaustive study of the business aspects of aquaculture recently and concluded that it is possible to raise more than one ton of shrimp per acre per year under ideal conditions. Shrimp farms now produce less than 500 pounds per acre annually.

Trout farming is enjoying a growth in parts of the Northwest, and the California Institute of Technology has experimented with help plantations on the open sea. Kelp, a

More Women Taking Hunter Safety Training Course

AUSTIN—Some 2,800 women have received certification from the Texas Voluntary Hunter Safety Training Program, a course sponsored by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. The number of females certified has risen two percent each year since the training program began in December 1971.

Tense Tumlinson, a district volunteer instructor from Cameron, said, "Women are taking hunter safety courses because they are more interested now in the shooting sports than before."

"Women are taking hunter safety courses because they don't know anything about hunting and they want to learn," said Tumlinson, "they want to be comfortable with firearms."

"Men and women compete equally in the shooting sports. Physical strength is immaterial; it is a matter of eye and muscle coordination."

In the 23 Texas school districts and youth groups where the course is taught, many girls are interested in hunter safety.

Older women take the course to learn the vocabulary of shooting sports, the characteristics of firearms and how to use them.

According to P&WD Hunter Safety Coordinator T. D. Carroll, "Too often people who want to hunt are handed a firearm, given a minimum amount of instruction and left in a deer blind."

"Hunter safety courses teach the purpose of each type of firearm and how guns are used in hunting," said Carroll.

Students learn how to handle, carry and store a gun. Gun safety at home is emphasized.

Survival and first aid are taught, along with game identification and the proper way to care for and dress game.

Foreman: Best Record

He's the youngest. He's got the best record. He's the strongest. That is where George Foreman fits in the heavyweight division today, an exalted position which may surprise those who are insisting that Tuesday's match will make or break his career.

Born Jan. 10, 1949 in Marshall, Foreman is 27 years old. Joe Frazier is 32. Muhammad Ali is 34. Ken Norton is 30.

Foreman has lost only once. Frazier has lost three. The strongest? Well, look at it this way. Frazier and Norton are the only two ever to defeat Ali. Foreman knocked out both in two rounds.

Of course, Ali and Frazier are rated as the two greatest contemporary fighters, and it was on a summer afternoon in Mexico City in 1968 that people began to compare Foreman with them.

Many of boxing's professional champions, including Ali and Frazier, first gained prominence in the Olympics. Foreman won not only fame, but the hearts of Americans, too.

His knockout of the Russian for the heavyweight gold medal was impressive. But his actions afterward were to be remembered longer. During the games when other black medalists raised clenched fists in protest, the muscular young Texan chose to wave two tiny American flags.

"The Job Corps made me a patriot," he later explained. "I was holding the flags up because I wanted everyone in that arena to know what country I was representing."

This was America's formal introduction to George Foreman, a "belligerent" kid who grew up in the mean Fifth Ward of Houston and became a national hero.

The link between street fighter and idol was the Job Corps. At 15, Foreman was a junior high school dropout. At 19, he was an Olympic gold medalist.

He was watching television one day when he saw Johnny Unites and Jim Brown telling about the virtues of the Job Corps, which offered a chance for unattached young people seeking a better life.

Foreman took their advice and wound up in a forestry camp in Oregon. He breathed fresh air and cleared land. His next assignment was the Parks Job Corps Center in Pleasanton, Calif., near San Francisco.

It was there that he met physical education coach and boxing instructor Doc Broadus. In Broadus, Foreman saw a friend. In Foreman, Broadus saw a big, raw youngster who might be able to help his boxing team.

The only trouble was that Foreman didn't want to box. It developed that he was adept at street fighting, but afraid that he would be embarrassed.

What The Two
Have To Say:

GEORGE FOREMAN

"No one's ever gonna knock me out again. They'll have to kill me first."

"When I fought Ron Lyle, he had me down on my face and out. But I told myself, you gotta get up. When I did and knocked him out, I proved to myself that George Foreman has the heart of a lion."

"Joe Frazier is one of the toughest men that ever lived. That's the supreme compliment."

"There's only one way to fight Joe Frazier, and that's to be in perfect condition. You gotta be ready to be hit in the stomach, to be hit in the head, and withstand all that pain."

"I feel I am a Gladiator. The way they fought—thumbs up, you win, thumbs down, you lose. It's all over. There's no in between."

"Sure, the fight in Manila was a great fight, but I never want my corner to stop it again. I'd rather be carried out on my shield if I can't win."

"My manager, my lawyer and my family all want me to retire. They say, 'Quit, Joe, you've got plenty of money. Enjoy it.' Well, I'm young and ready. I only want two fights. Foreman and Clay. I've looked at the films. I know I can beat 'em."

Suicide

An Escape, Not A Goal

"Basically, suicide boils down to insufferable anguish...They have run out of alternatives and see no other way of getting out of their mental pain."

"Every suicidal gesture or threat should be taken seriously."

More people kill themselves in June than any other month. That stark statistic stood out in a recent release from the Texas Medical Association.

An estimated 25,000 people commit suicide yearly. Whether it's by asphyxiation...the ingestion of pills or some other harmful substance...the gory use of guns or knives...hurling off high buildings, bridges and so-called "suicide cliffs"...or simply walking into a lake or ocean to be swallowed by the water's dark depths.

It's suicide by the laymen's term. In law, felix de se...intentional taking of one's own life.

One estimate says as many as seven times that 25,000 figure attempt suicide annually, according to the Bulletin of Suicidology.

The author of a psychiatry textbook puts the ratio between suicide attempts and actual suicides at about 8 to 1—one suicide for every eight attempts.

Local law officials declined to comment or give any statistics concerning suicide cases in Marshall. Off the record, one anonymous officer said the police "get a few calls...sometimes from suicide victims, their families or friends."

Tom Atkins, psychologist and clinical director at Gregg-Harrison Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center, puts little stock in suicide statistics.

"They are always underestimated. Many deaths described as accidental are actually suicidal," Atkins told the News Messenger.

A former volunteer worker with the Suicide Prevention Center in Dallas, Atkins said attempts at self-destruction are sometimes described derisively as acts to get attention. And that attention should be given promptly, Atkins said.

"Every suicidal gesture or threat should be taken seriously," the psychologist emphasized.

Atkins said there are usually some subtle clues. Studies show that almost everyone who seriously intends suicide leaves some clues to his imminent action. Sometimes there are broad hints, sometimes only slight changes in behavior.

When a person is suicidal, a state of mind that comes and goes, there is no single trait by which they can be characterized, Atkins related. Professional studies, however, indicate that they are always disturbed, and often they are depressed. They feel hopeless about their lives and helpless to do anything about it. Usually, their attitude reflects itself in verbal or behavioral clues.

"When someone threatens, 'I'm going to kill myself' or 'I just can't go on,' they usually mean it. They haven't decided how or when," Atkins continued, referring the writer to the textbook chapter on Psychiatric Emergencies, Suicide, written by Edwin S. Shneidman, Ph.D.

"If conditions in the suicidal person's life do not change, he will soon set the time and choose the method of death."

There are also behavioral clues to suicide. Once a person has finally decided to kill himself, he begins to act differently. Professional observations are that he may withdraw, to become almost monk-like and contemplative. He may drastically reduce eating, refrain from conversation or ignore normal sexual drives. He may either sleep more soundly or suffer from insomnia.

The person intent on killing himself may draw up a will or act as if he were going on a long and distant trip.

Studies on suicide victims show several high-risk categories: Male caucasians, those over 45 years old and between the approximate ages of 15 and 21, and people with drug or alcohol problems show up in significant numbers.

About three times as many women as men attempt suicide, but nearly three times as many men succeed, according to the Bulletin of Suicidology.

Stress and strain can often trigger suicides. The list is long—loss of a job, a loved one or status; a serious argument with spouse; divorce; serious illness in the family; moving to a new town; physical disfigurement; a court appearance for an offense—all rank high on the suicide-causing list. Rage, frustration, failure and humiliation can also cause trouble.

Atkins and the Texas Medical Association agree that many suicidal people can be helped if they have someone to talk to. A warm, sympathetic listener can play a key role in keeping someone from taking that fatal step. Suicidal people often need professional counseling but communication is the key even for trained professionals.

"Call MH-MR," Atkins advised. "We handle mental problems...and we all have mental and emotional problems at times...Almost every person has thought about suicide at one time or another in his life."

Generally, the suicidal person's perception of reality is distorted, Atkins has observed.

"Basically, suicide boils down to insufferable anguish. In their mind they have run out of alternatives and see no other way of getting out of their mental pain. There are always alternatives. They just need to get it out in the open and talk over their problems," Atkins commented.

That's when a Suicide Hot Line can be a vital link between life and death, and Atkins voiced hope that a statewide facility will eventually be established as a suicide preventive measure.

He related his experience in successfully preventing a 15-year-old girl's suicide. She called the Dallas Suicide Prevention Center while he was on duty. Unmarried, she had just learned she was pregnant and felt her parents would never accept it.

"The fellow told her he would have nothing to do with the situation, and she felt she had no other way but to commit suicide," the psychologist explained.

He proved to be the warm, interested listener who listened with suggestions on how to approach her parents with the problem.

"It was one of those cases where a person wants to and yet does not want to end his life. He makes plans for self-destruction and, at the same time, hopes someone will rescue him," Atkins added.

The girl called off and on for six months to report her progress. "She finally married the guy and they had a pretty good relationship," stated the man who offered the right alternative to self-inflicted cessation of her young life.

He advised that families or friends who detect suicidal tendencies in a person should contact a psychologist, psychiatrist, a mental health or social worker.

Atkins pointed out that suicide tendency is not inherited, but if it happens in a family, the possibility increases.

He also noted that the suicidal crisis, or period of high and dangerous lethality, is an interval of short duration.

Atkins said there is no set solution. The best prevention is to accept and believe that anyone—a colleague, a loved one, a close friend—can be suicidal.

"Most people have thought about suicide at one time."

Three members of the Marshall Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., a public service sorority, attended the Southeast Regional Conference in Little Rock, Ark.

Delegates were Mmes. Constance Howell, Lola Mae Moon and Irma Rambo.

Purpose of the two-day meeting was to evaluate the program of the public service sorority in this region, and to develop the skills for future "forceful movement."

Activities held at the Convention Center and the Camelot Inn Hotel, headquarters for the convention, were geared to the theme, "1913 to 1976—From Heritage to Forceful Movement."

There were workshops, general sessions, luncheons and a banquet. The sorority, 600 delegates, also attended a worship service in one of the Little Rock Baptist churches.

marriage by her parents and sisters. She was wearing a chapel-length gown of imported tulle with lace and satin. The wedding ring, necklace, earrings and bracelet were attached to a see-through yoke, encrusted with pearls, Satin-pearl trumpet sleeves and was peeking up the deep hemline of the circular skirt, sweeping into a chapel train.

To complement her gown, the bride wore a lace-encrusted veil attached to a face-framing cap. Her bridal bouquet was of cascading yellow roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath, tied with green ribbon streamers.

Miss Anita Fawn Allen attended the sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Gloria Lynn Allen, another sister, Miss Myrna Peterson of Oak Brook, Ill., Miss Cathy Palmer, and Mrs. Marty Roberts, both of Marshall.

The attendants were Tiffany knit powder blue halter dresses with floral organza caplets in shades of blue and green. Blue picture hats completed their attire. The honor attendants carried a short cascade of white and yellow daisy mums, yellow roses and baby's breath. The bridesmaids nosegays were in the same flowers.

40th Reunion

Texas Centennial Grad Turn Back Calendar

By LIZ SCHLITTLER
Lifestyle Editor

Traveling down memory lane this weekend are the Texas Centennial graduates of Marshall High School who are marking their 40th anniversary during the nation's Bicentennial. Registered at press time for the first reunion for the January and May graduating classes of 1938 are 117 class members, their spouses and guests.

The two-day celebration got underway at 5 p.m. Saturday at Marshall Lakeside Country Club. Handling the registration were Inez Ward, Joe and Rose May Harrell Menden.

Program for the evening included a social hour, buffet dinner, awards presentation and dancing to the organ music reminiscent of the thirties, played by a schoolmate, Lori Reeves Faust.

Scheduled for today is breakfast at 8:30 a.m. at the Gables Restaurant arranged by Bernard Grimes and Lester Sanders.

A memorial service will follow at 10 a.m. in the same auditorium where graduates received their high school diplomas 40 years ago.

C. M. Beckett Jr., who will have charge of the service in memory of the following graduates: Dorothy Hodge, Louise Valte Hodges, Shirley Short, Marjorie Wheeler, Alfred Harris Bell, Louis Wendell Fultz, R. L. Harkins, Harold Jones, Edward Jackson, Jordan, William Karl Krautter, James Henry Long, Charles Lucas, Jack Moore, J. C. Menden, Milton Murrell, Robert Pettit, and Robert Floyd Woodley.

The spacious ballroom, setting for the Saturday evening party, was timely decorated in the Bicentennial theme using the patriotic colors of red, white and blue. Anita Currey King chaired the decoration committee.

Focal point of interest was a massive, white, welcoming graduates made by a schoolmate, L. W. Jones Jr., now living in Abbeville, La. This colorful sign, backgrounding the speaker's table, was inscribed with the liberty bell, eagle and the dates 1938-78.

Ribbon runners trailed the length of the tables, interspersed with American flags, nestled in ribbon and greenery. The head table, flanked by standing Texas and American flags, was draped in red, white, and blue bunting. A long low arrangement of red and white gladioli and carnations, accented with blue ribbon bows, formed the centerpiece.

Of special interest were the bulletin boards filled with pictures of graduates, programs, parrots, the school newspaper, and colorful decals reminding

Field Day Ends Blue Bird Camp

This summer's initial group of Blue Bird Campers, who arrived at the camp on Friday, June 8, concluded the first session of the camping season at Camp WaCanta on Friday, June 11.

The day was devoted to field events, including hula hoop and lemon twist tournaments, three-legged races, two sack races, feather ball and swimming in the camp pool.

During the week the girls were occupied with fishing, wood-working, exploring and learning about nature, crafts and swimming, according to Mrs. Dottie Delmar, camp director.

Craft counselors Debbie Hull, Joanie Verhalen and Sharon Brown assisted the campers in making bread dough creations, ice cream carton waste baskets, and antique flower pots.

Daily swimming instruction was given to all campers under the direction of Mrs. Charlotte Smith, water safety instructor. Swimming instructors assisting her were Anne Williams, Gina McKay, Linda LaFont, Rosalind Williams, Sherry Haynes, Lynn Williams and Donna Harper.

Wednesday was a special day at the camp. Upon arrival, campers discovered that the lodge was decorated for Christmas, complete with a Christmas tree and Rudolph, the red-nose reindeer. Counselors, dressed in red and green, greeted girls at the door with "Merry Christmas!"

Christmas songs were replaced the traditional camp songs sung during morning sing-song. The Christmas theme continued as campers selected gifts from nature to present to fellow campers at lunch.

Campers attending the first session included the following:

Candlelight Rites Unite Couple

JEFFERSON-In a candlelight ceremony Saturday evening, Miss Eileen Ford and Paul Bateman Stanley repeated nuptial vows. Following a wedding trip to Dallas, the couple will make their home at 1416 Frost St., Glider.

The bride, valedictorian of the spring graduating class at Jefferson High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Allen Ford Sr. of Jefferson. She plans to attend Kilgore Junior College in the fall as an elementary education major.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Benjamin Stanley Jr. of Kerrville are parents of the groom, a graduate of Robert E. Lee High School in Tyler. He earned his bachelor degree in forestry from Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge and received a master's degree in business administration from the University of Texas at Austin.

At LSU the groom was a member of Theta Xi fraternity. He is employed by International Paper Company.

Rev. Jerry Neal, pastor, performed the ceremony at the First United Methodist Church of Jefferson. Organist, Mrs. Gene Terry, and soloist, James Huston, both of Jefferson, presented the wedding music.

Nuptial vows were repeated before the altar highlighted by tall gleaming candle arbors, entwined with boxwood and fern garlands, interspersed with daisies. Centering the setting was a basket of white majestic daisies and Bakers fern. Family pews were marked by white French bows and fern.

Mr. Ford gave his daughter in marriage. She was wearing a traditional gown of white silk organza. Venise lace bands, edged in organza ruffles, outlined the V-neckline, banded the tapered sleeves and formed an apron design on the full skirt. The lace and ruffles flounced the hemline sweeping into a chapel train.

Her bridal illusion, re-embroidered with lace, was attached to a matching lace cap, trimmed with loops of white satin ribbon. She carried a contemporary cascade of roses, daisies and greenery.

Mrs. Richard Harper was her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Catherine Hoag of Jefferson attended as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Thompson of Jacksonville, cousin of the bride, and Miss Nancy Stone of Jefferson. The bride's niece, Jennifer Ford of McCartney, Wings Fly High In U.S.

By MARY CAMPBELL

AP Newfeatures
Paul McCartney, ex-Beatle, present leader of Wings and the "Wings over America" tour, says, "I'm just glad people notice the songs and like them and sing them and listen to them. That's all we're doing—writing songs and performing them with a view to people liking them. That's the whole story."

The tour is playing 34 concerts in 21 cities, May 3 to June 22, to an estimated 600,000 persons. Each no-intermission concert lasts about two hours and includes, usually, 20 songs McCartney has written since the Beatles broke up in 1969, five Beatles songs and three by other writers.

Wings' "Silly Love Songs" hit No. 1 on the best-selling record chart May 29 and the new album it's from, "Wings at the Speed of Sound" went to No. 2 on that date, in both America and Britain.

In England, in April, EMI Records released all 21 Beatles singles and they flew into the charts. In America, Capitol Records released "Got To Get You Into My Life," with McCartney singing lead, from the Beatles' 1966 album "Revolver," on May 31, and a double LP of 28 Beatles songs not previously repackaged, "Rock 'n' Roll Music," a week later. Capitol said it would spend $1 million in promotion, which didn't sound necessary.

Being an ex-Beatle doesn't insure a successful tour—George Harrison, the only other ex-Beatle to tour America, in 1974, did it with Ravi Shankar and a group of other Indian musicians and got criticized for his choice of music and for not playing smaller halls.

"Wings over America" isn't stirring up McCartney-mania but in sold-out Madison Square Garden in New York the audience seemed very pleased. The show was good, solid, tightly played rock 'n' roll. The closest comparison we could make was to the Rolling Stones, where the star is clearly the focal point but also part of the band and where strong

PAUL MCCARTNEY rock 'n' roll music is really the top consideration—both of audience and band, no matter what personal charisma and theatrics attend it.

Anne Meara Joins 'Rhoda'

Anne Meara has been signed for a recurring role in the "Rhoda" series, which stars Valerie Harper in the title role. Miss Meara will portray Sally Gallagher, a 30-year-old airline stewardess and a strong-willed lady who offers a wealth of opinions to her friends.

The series, which returns to production on June 14 at CBS Studio Center, is broadcast on CBS.

Miss Meara is the distaff member of Stiller and Meara. She and her husband, Jerry Stiller, are noted for their comedy work in clubs and on variety programs. This past season Miss Meara starred in the "Kate McShane" series on the Network and her role won her an Emmy nomination. She has appeared in the feature films "Lovers and Other Strangers" and "The Out of Towners."

In addition to her success as a comedienne, Miss Meara has an interest in serious drama and has a number of dramatic credits, including a role in Off Broadway's "The House of Blue Leaves."

Pot Sweetened for Beatles Undaunted by the non-response to his initial offer and buoyed by the Emmy Awards given "NBC's Saturday Night," producer Lorne Michaels has renewed his efforts to effect a Beatles reunion on the show by convincing NBC to "sweeten the pot."

Ron Galella, a controversial and successful candid photographer of celebrities, presents a glittering parade of stars to "OFFGUARD: A Paparazzi Look at the Beautiful People."

The procession of person alities proceeds through more than 350 images accompanied by admiring, colorful or revealing comments by the author, candid in words as well as in pictures.

The world's celebrities, he says, normally hire press agents to present a posed, packaged and prefabricated look, all glossed over for public approval. He, however, is after the natural, spontaneous look which presents the non-plasticized core of the stars in their unposed moods and moments.

It is not an easy job, Galella reports. In fact, it is hazardous and risky. In pursuit of his pictures, he says he has had his jaw broken by Marlon Brando, been beaten by Richard Burton's bodyguards, been soaked by a high-pressure hose by friends of Brigitte Bardot, and been chased by Secret Service agents with instructions to smash his camera.

Despite the threats, occasional violence—and sometimes a display of folly which brings public humiliation—Galella sums up the pros and cons and makes this assessment:

"But I don't care. I see myself as the dean of American paparazzo photo-journalism, a self-appointed role, perhaps, but one I figure I've paid the dues to own. I love my work—and I'm good at it. Maybe the best at it."
